

The goal of a world without racism seems like an impossible one. However, a determined group of believers can do miracles like the 12 apostles when they first started out. Just as they spread the word, we have to spread the idea that we can have a world without racism one small step at a time.

After reading the Black Butterfly by Dr. Brown and seeing his grand solution of billions of federal , state , and local dollars invested in the neighborhoods of the black butterfly not embraced by our group, I was at first discouraged. I now see the wisdom of starting off small. If the apostles with the Lord's help can spread the gosple , then this community of believers can spread our message by our deeds. Let's support the South Baltimore Community Land Trust.
